Planned Parenthood Advocates of Arizona Announces its Early Endorsement of Terry Goddard

PHOENIX – Planned Parenthood Advocates of Arizona announced last week at its annual fundraising luncheon that it is making an early endorsement in support of Terry Goddard, candidate for Secretary of State.

Goddard was among three statewide candidates who received early endorsement. Consideration was made because of the importance of the races and each candidate's commitment to making women's health a pillar in his or her campaign.

"Terry is someone who has supported women's health throughout his career," says Jodi Liggett, Director of Public Policy, Planned Parenthood Advocates of Arizona. "He has a strong, viable campaign with incredible advisors."

With extremists having prevalence at the Capitol, this year's election is the opportunity for moderate, common-sense candidates to be elected into office – people who truly represent the interests and wellbeing of Arizonans.

"I am grateful for the support of Planned Parenthood. I look forward to winning this election so we can defend voter rights and restore balance and sanity to our state," says Goddard.
